AI engines provide valuable data insights, however, many firms find they need more than one AI engine to accomplish their goals. Each AI engine operates independently and captures the resulting data within its own system, limiting its usefulness. With the AI Hub, you can free the knowledge gained from your AI engines and make it more powerful by bringing it all together in Thomson Reuters HighQ.

The AI Hub integrates with leading AI providers to offer a single, easy-to-use interface that automates and simplifies processes such as due diligence, contract reviews and management, large property deals, and legal project management.

It provides the ability to organize and group agreements, easily build contract management databases, and measure deviations against specific contract templates. Enabling you to create and manage large contract volumes along with their contractual risk.
